SAN DIEGUITO COUNTY PARK

A San Diego County Day-Use Park

Welcome to San Dieguito County Park

Park Facilities

Located a short distance from the Pacific Ocean, San Dieguito County Park enjoys coastal breezes, lush greenery, scenic trails and is surrounded by groves of stately trees. The park is separated into an upper and lower areas, which are connected by a network of trails. The upper area can accommodate large group picnics and has five playgrounds. The lower park can accommodate smaller group picnics in a lush, greenway setting. In the center sits Activity Hill, which offers unique hiking and fitness opportunities, along with viewing platforms, vistas, rope bridges and educational audio panels with information about local history and wildlife.

Flora and Fauna

Wildlife is abundant in the park, from birds soaring high above to four-legged creatures in the hills and underbrush below. Red-shouldered hawks are often heard before they are seen because of their high-pitched call. Southern Pacific rattlesnakes can be seen sunning themselves along the trail. Rabbits, squirrels and quail use the brush to build homes, gather food and hide from predators.

A majority of the wildlife on site lives and congregates in the center of the park where the vegetation is comprised of Coastal Chaparral – a local ecosystem that is quickly disappearing. Stop by to enjoy its diversity and beauty!

San Dieguito is also home to a diverse collection of both native and ornamental trees such as Scrub Oak, Eucalyptus, Torrey Pine, Jacaranda, Liquid Amber, Ficus, Tipu, Pepper trees, Cypress, Spruce, Sycamore and Cottonwood. Rangers host regular plant and tree hikes.

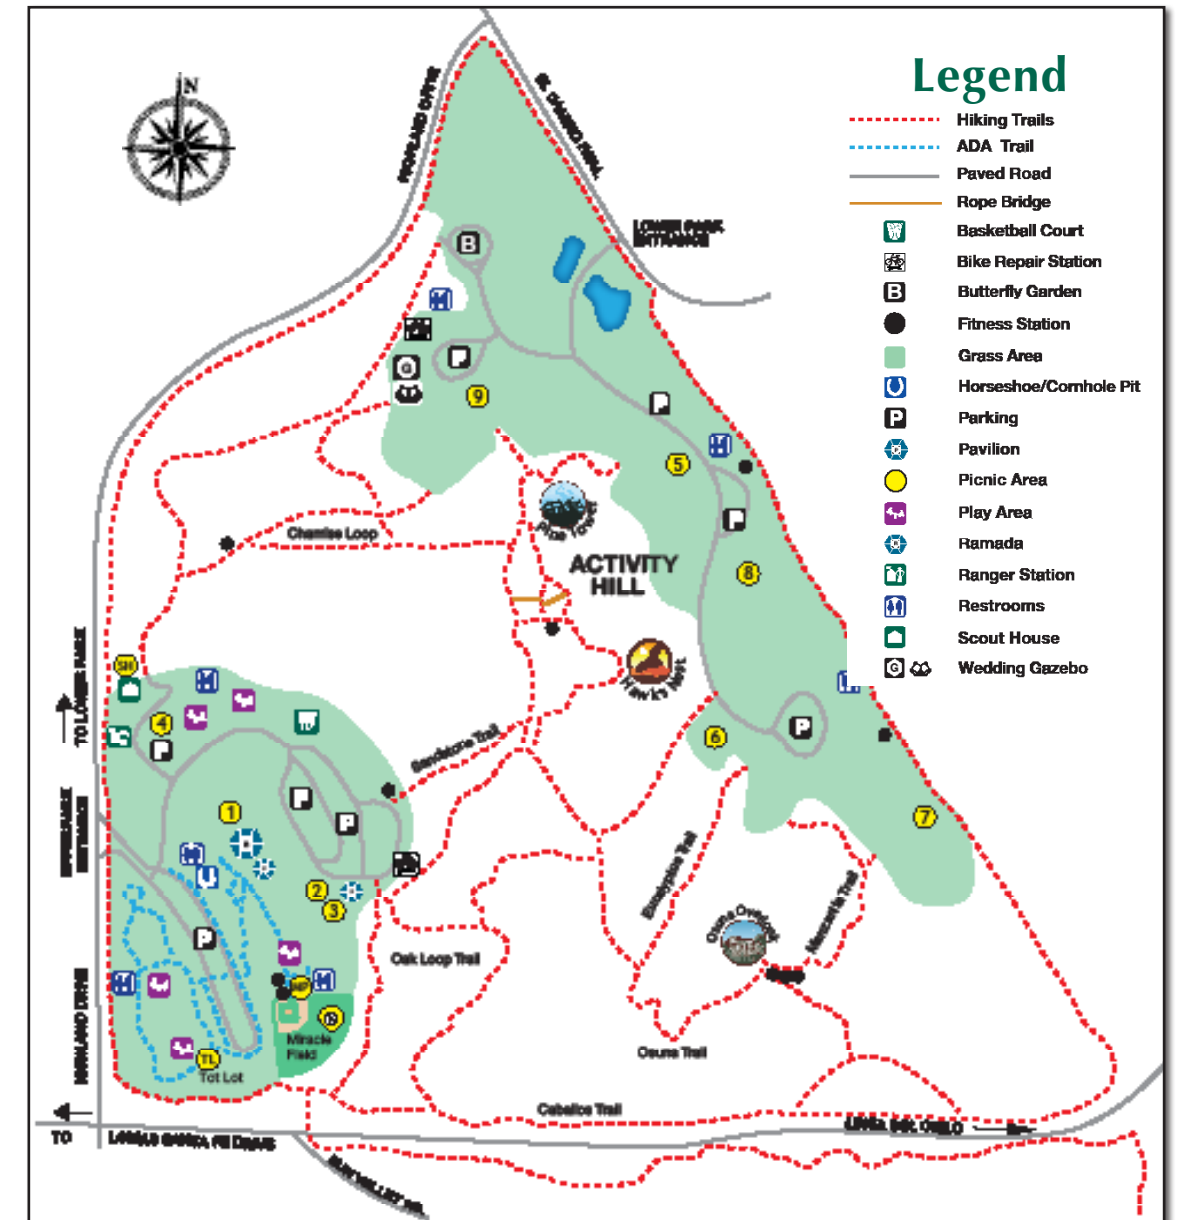

History

For thousands of years, the Kumeyaay people lived along the coast and inland in the river valleys and mountains. At around 1833, the Mexican government established three pueblos (towns) for Indian neophytes from Mission San Diego, including one at San Dieguito. In 1840, Rancho San Dieguito, east of the current park, was granted by the Mexican government to Juan Maria Osuna. Osuna served as the first Alcalde (Mayor) of the Pueblo of San Diego and his large family lived in the area for many years, ranching and farming.

In 1906, the Santa Fe Railway Company acquired the Osuna ranch and adjoining lands. The company planted thousands of eucalyptus trees, hoping to use the wood for railroad ties. Unfortunately, the timber was too flexible for railroads, but the trees could provide shade and habitat for birds.

The company sold individual parcels of the land, which helped to create the town of Rancho Santa Fe. In the 1950s, the San Dieguito Junior Chamber of Commerce (JCC) worked with County Parks & Recreation and the Santa Fe Irrigation District to sponsor San Dieguito County Park. The district granted land and the JCC purchased it for just $10 in 1954. The park was dedicated in December 1956.
